1. Know Your Plus Forward Contract

A Plus Forward contract is a foreign exchange ("FX") product which can be used for FX risk management. A Plus Forward contract is a combination of two components, a FX Forward and a FX Option.

Assuming you enter into a Plus Forward contract to sell USD against MYR:

- under the FX Forward component, you must sell an agreed USD amount ("Notional 1") at the agreed FX Forward Rate against MYR on the Maturity Date; and
- under the FX Option component, on Expiry Date there are two possible scenarios:
 - a) if the Fixing Rate \geq Strike Rate, you must sell an agreed USD amount ("Notional 2") at the agreed Strike Rate against MYR on the Settlement Date; or
 - b) if the Fixing Rate $<$ Strike Rate, the FX Option will expire and there will be no settlement.

Terminology:

Notional 1	:	The agreed amount for the FX Forward component
Notional 2	:	The agreed amount for the FX Option component, which will be capped at a maximum of two (2) times leverage of Notional 1
FX Forward Rate	:	The FX rate for the FX Forward component
Strike Rate	:	The FX rate for the FX Option component which will apply if the FX Option component is exercised based on the terms of the transaction
Maturity Date	:	The settlement date of the FX Forward component
Expiry Date	:	The date on which the FX Option component expires
Expiry Time	:	At or around 2:00pm Kuala Lumpur time on Expiry Date
Settlement Date	:	The date on which the exchange of currencies takes place if the FX Option component is exercised, typically two (2) business days after the Expiry Date
Fixing Rate	:	The FX rate at the Expiry Time on the Expiry Date
Calculation Agent	:	AmBank (M) Berhad
